Health and wellbeing

Islington Council and the NHS work in partnership to improve the health and wellbeing of all those in Islington. The health of the Islington population is improving, but not always as fast as in other areas because of high levels of deprivation across all Islington wards coupled with unhealthy lifestyles.

Islington residents experience poorer physical and mental health that results in early deaths from cancer and circulatory diseases (heart disease and stroke). Islington men also have the lowest life expectancy out of all the London boroughs.

This section provides information and evidence on the current and future health and wellbeing needs of the Islington population, helping with the identification of future priorities for action. Where possible the sections provide;

- a snapshot of the overall health of the local population, and highlight potential
- problems through comparison with other areas and with the national average

Below the search bar, it states '1-10 of about 3360 results were returned'. On the left, a 'Filter your search' section lists categories with checkboxes and counts: Health and wellbeing (8), Adult Care (7), Crime (3), Anti-social behaviour (2), Housing (2), and Homelessness (2). The main content area shows two tabs: 'Web pages (958)' and 'Documents (783)'. A 'Sort by date or relevance' dropdown is set to 'date or relevance'.
